Candy Hearts — Answer Key

Did you know?

- The classic printed candy heart traces back to "conversation candies" first produced in the 1860s, originally in other shapes before the heart became standard.
- Production of the most famous American brand of these candies was actually paused for a period starting in 2019, following a change in company ownership, before returning to shelves.
- The specific phrases printed on these candies have been updated over the decades to stay current with the times.
- These candies are made using a real compression process that presses ingredients into shape rather than a poured or molded method used for many other candies.
