Chicks — Answer Key

Did you know?

- A chick can take between 19 and 21 days to hatch from an egg, depending on the breed.
- Chicks use a small, temporary structure called an egg tooth to help crack their way out of the shell.
- Baby chicks are yellow at hatching in many breeds, but many chickens change color noticeably as they grow into adults.
- Gallinaceous is the technical term ornithologists use for chicken-like birds, a group that also includes turkeys and quail.
