Cozy Autumn — Answer Key

Did you know?

- The Danish concept of "hygge," roughly meaning a cozy, contented feeling, became widely popular internationally in the mid-2010s, though the word itself is much older.
- Warm spices like cinnamon and nutmeg are strongly associated with fall partly because they were traditionally used to preserve and flavor autumn harvest foods.
- Flannel fabric gets its soft, brushed texture from a specific finishing process that raises tiny fibers on the surface of the woven cloth.
- Shorter daylight hours in fall are a real, measurable reason many people naturally gravitate toward warm drinks, blankets and earlier indoor evenings.
