Gardening — Answer Key

Did you know?

- Companion planting, growing certain plants near each other on purpose, is a real technique some gardeners use to deter pests or support growth naturally.
- Permaculture is a real, specific design philosophy for growing food sustainably, modeled on patterns found in natural ecosystems.
- Xeriscaping is the real term for landscaping designed to need very little water, useful in drier climates.
- Finished compost is genuinely rich in nutrients partly because the decomposition process is powered by real, active microorganisms breaking material down.
