Did you know?

- Coffee comes primarily from two species of bean, Arabica and Robusta, which genuinely differ in flavor, caffeine content and how they are grown.
- Tea, despite its huge variety of names and flavors, almost all comes from the leaves of a single plant species, processed in different ways.
- Marshmallows floating on hot chocolate were originally a practical touch as much as a treat, since they help insulate the drink and slow heat loss.
- Espresso gets its name from the fact that it is brewed quickly, under pressure, rather than any specific bean or roast.
