Rivers — Answer Key

Did you know?

- The Nile and the Amazon are frequently compared as the two longest rivers in the world, with researchers still debating the exact measurement.
- Rivers naturally carve valleys and canyons over long periods through the slow, ongoing process of erosion.
- A river's mouth is where it flows into a larger body of water, such as a sea, ocean or lake.
- Many of the world's major cities were originally built along rivers, since they provided fresh water and transportation routes.
