Spanish Numbers — Answer Key

Did you know?

- Uno shortens to un before a masculine noun (un libro) and becomes una before a feminine one (una casa).
- Cien changes to ciento when another number follows it, as in ciento veinte.
- Primero and tercero lose their final o before a masculine singular noun: el primer día, el tercer piso.
- In everyday Spanish, ordinals above décimo are uncommon; people usually switch to a cardinal number instead, as in el piso quince.
